Mayfield's counsel say they can complete their side of the case in a few days, and Peddy's counsel may be compeled to rest the case unless the committee permits general issues involving the Klan to be introduced.

Americans Try Also To Learn Of "Death Ray"

By WEBB MILLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, May 23.—Americans have entered the race to obtain the secret of Crindell Mathews' death ray, Mathews said today.

With Great Britain, the inventor's own country, and France in competition for the diabolical invention which it is claimed may revolutionize war and make the naton which holds t supreme, Mathews gave out that he had received a written from the United States.

Other reports said that the National Academy of Science at Washington had cabled the inventor, asking particulars adn that American naval attaches here had been ordered to investigate Mathews' claims.

American officials here denied that the United States Government was in any way interested in the ray.

The inventor kept in hiding most of the day, possibly for the purpose avoding process servers.

Meanwhile both French and British claim to have a definite contract with the inventor entitling them to a share in the deadly ray, which kills at great distance, explodes ammunition, destroys machinery and brings down airplanes in flames, according to Mathews.

When the latter, angry because he British Government offered him but one thousand pounds for the invention, flew from England to France yesterday, he was pursued at the last minute by a lawyer with a writ of injunction obtained on behalf of some Englishmen who claim 32 per cent of the rights in the ray.

Mathews today denied that these countrymen of his had a contract and said their option expired a month ago.

"The late British offers have been unsatisfactory," he said. "I'm going to wait until Friday afternoon. If no satisfactory proposition is forthcoming from my own country, I will sign a contract with a French firm at Lyons."

The French firm to which he refers, headed by one M. Royer, insists Mathews already has signed contracts providing for delivery of the diabolical ray to France.

Mathews, after interviewing Royer's representative here and finding that the British had started action in the French courts to restrain him from selling secret in France, disappeared, ray and all. It was believed he had gone to Lyons.

The inventor's position is that the French offer is sufficient to enable him to go on with this and other inventions while the British was so until he would have had to "disclose the basic secret without assurance of future compensation."

Carpentier To Meet Gibbons In Three Days

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 28.—In three days Georges Carpentier and Tommy Gibbons meet here in their 10-round bout, but the "experts" and the betting fraternity still are wonder ing which scrapper to entrust with their predictions and money.

A surprising change in sentiment in favor of Carpentier has developed during the past few days. Heretofore, sentiment was overwhelmingly in favor of Gibbons. This was due to a number of reasons, chief among them being the memory of his standing off Jack Dempsey for the full fifteen rounds at Shelby, Mont., while Carpentier fell in four rounds; the fact he is a superb boxer; is always trained to a fighting edge; and because he was on display here long before Carpentier arrived.

Now the experts are weighing Carpentier's brilliancy as a boxer, quick thinker and famed "leaping right" sleep producer, against Gibbons' masterly boxing, methodical mind and what they term "rather light punching power."

Bishop's Case To Be Decided By Head Bishop

CLEVELAND, Ohio., May 28.—Whether the tribunal of nine bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church trying Bishop William Montgomery Brown for heresy here, has jurisdiction in the case will be ruled upon today by presiding Bishop John Murray, of Baltimore.

The question was raised by Brown's counsel when the trial opened in Trinity Cathedral yesterday afternoon

Joseph W. Sharts, Dayton, Ohio, Socialist candidate for Governor of Ohio, and Edward N. Bushnell, attorneys for Brown, indicated today they would continue to fight hard to have the charges against the retired bishop of Arkansas dismissed.

As a result preliminary battles may delay actual taking of evidence several days.

Brown's counsel indicated they would question the impartiality of the tribunal and would file two new motions to have the case dismissed.

Charles Dibble, Kalamazoo, Mich., church advocate and "prosecutor," said today the "defendent's" whole argument is an issue of contradictions and reality.

"The contention of the defendant that his trial is improper would result in making the bishop an absolute monarch in his own domain," he said.

"We planned to be married, of course," she said, "and will yet if my aunt will let us."

Texas Democrats Still Dominate The Political Life Of The State

There was a band wagon as well as the old gray mare band from Brownwood present at the State convention of Texas democrats at Waco Tuesday. It was owned by William Gibbs McAdoo of California. The driver was Marshall Hicks of San Antonio and the four big white beauties that pulled it were Tom Love of Dallas, Alva Bryan of Waco, Z. E. Marvin of Dallas and William A. Hanger of Ft. Worth. Nearly everybody got on the band wagon, which was pleasing alike to owner of the vehicle, to driver of the well greased affair and to the quartet of democrats of this imperial commonwealth.

The forty votes which Texas is to cast in the national democratic convention at Madison Square Garden will be cast "from now on" for the gangling, grey-eyed, sterling son-in-law of the great President Woodrow Wilson, whose praises were sung in a solemn resolution of respect and adoration Tuesday.

It was not a spectacular convention in the main. However, there were times during the sweltering day in which it bore all the earmarks of a "little national convention." For example when Colonel Alvin Owsley was endorsed for the Vice Presidency, there was a parade of banners in which all the districts of Texas participated; then there was much shouting both ways with the pro-Neff delegates in the majority when the Governor was called upon to address the body following resolutions endorsing his administration, followed by an ovation only exceeded by that which Owsley was greeted as the candidate for Vice President, the first ever to be offered by this state.

Emblazoned across the top of the rostrum, high over head where all might see, hung a life size banner supporting the candidacy of Felix D. Robertson for Governor. During the day, a motion prevalied on the floor of the house, although opposed by Hanger, that all other signs supporting candidates be taken down. The fact that Robertson's banner was given a place over all was significant and forecasts the early defense of his candidacy by Tom Love, Alvin Owsley and many other war horses of the democratic party. Those who have persisted in believing that Robertson would be far down the list when the vote of the people is taken were cognizant that he will be a factor to contend with by other candidates in the current campaign.

Among the suspected and unopposed events of the day was the adoption of resolutions declaring Earle B. Mayfield to be the duly elected Senator from Texas and severely criticizing the unwarranted probe now being conducted at Washington.

Pat Neff had his day. He has had many days perhaps but Tuesday's demonstration must have been most pleasing of all to him. The democratic delegates of Texas showed the traditional admiration and esteem of Americans felt for men of courage and frankness and they were impressed that he possessed both qualities when he arose when tendered a place of honor among the delegates at large to the national convetion and respectfully but unmistakably refused the nomination just as he had refused the place of President of the University of Texas when offered that high office by the Board of Regents recently. In an earlier address, human nature prevailed when he fought back with considerable feeling when a number of voices came from one part of the convention hall protested against his appearance on the rostrum for the purpose of speechmaking.

Both of his addresses were characteristic of Neff.

The polished oratory of the occasion was the one delivered by Alvin Owsley when he accepted the endorsement of his state for the office of Vice President and running mate. This man, known to the members of former legislatures as the "Chesterfield of the House," known to soldiers during the conflict as the peerless young orator of the war, and to the world since as the last Commander in Chief of the American Legion, in a most feeling address eloquently expressed the sentiments of gratitude which were in his heart and pledged to do all within the power of his mind and body as he labored in the interest of William Gibbs McAdoo for the Presidency and to help free the nation from the "rottenness of republican rule." He declared his faith again in the belief that America is for 100 per cent Americans.

The resolutions adopted state the stand of Texas democrats on the subject of prohibition. The party, according to this document, is for the enforcement of all laws, and that includes the prohibition laws, and reaffirms its faith in prohibition as a necessity to national development and the safety of American homes. Pat Neff declared that the democrats would not care if the nation became so dry that the Sahara desert would look like the Pacific ocean in comparison and the Democrats assembled applauded and were pleased.

Texas Democrats are going home today or are already there after having attended the convention saying "just as I expected." Newspaper writers are saying "It turned out just like I said it would" but still there's a lot of them and others wondering how it was that Tom Love was given the reins of party government for four more years in Texas; why Tom Love quit fighting Alvin Owsley and Governor Neff, and wondering what the Governor will do next, while others are declaring that "This old state ain't what she used to be, ain't what she used to be."

But after all the Democratic party is still the dominant political organization in the State of Texas.

INSTANCES OF THE TAIL WAGGING THE DOG

The State Convention Tuesday at Waco decided to send twenty four delegates at large from Texas to the National Convention at New York this summer. It has been a custom of democratic conventions in Texas for years to send a large delegation at large, splitting the four votes among those sent. The districts are confined to two delegates. This policy, easily defended, is dangerous to peace and harmony and leads to injustice and error. A campaign should be begun immediately among Texas democrats to frown down any such practice hereafter.

It leads ultimately and always to a case of the tail wagging the dog when so many of the leading politicians of a state are sent at large, each with a fraction of a vote, the combination overshadowing the district delegates who feel that they are an inconsequential unit of the whole delegation. Thus representative government is defeated to a certain degree.

The forty votes from Texas are distributed two for each Congressional district and two for each Senator. Since it is unwise to split the district vote with more than two delegates, the same rule should obtain as to the splitting of votes with the delegates at large. There has to be a limit and the state should restrict its delegation to the actual number of votes to be cast.

If every state should send large delegations, more in number than their vote implies, it would be difficult, if not impossible to find a convention hall that could seat the convention. At present there are alloted forty seats in Madison Square Garden for the Texans. Who is to have the choice seats is already raised. The district delegates certainly have a right to demand theirs and ought to do so and for the twenty four delegates at large only four chairs have been provided. If the women claim equal rights, they will get two and then the two favored ladies will either have to hold the other five each on their laps or tell them to go on away and crowd into the galleries if they can. If the men are as chivalrous as gentlemen ought to be, then they will give the women all the four seats. Then each woman seated will only have to hold five women each on her lap or tell those who do not get the chairs that they will have to look elsewhere for a place of comfort while deliberating on the important convention issues.

Out at San Francisco in 1920, the only hard words remembered were spoken by some of the delegates at large who felt that they had been unjustly discriimnated against by not getting one of theh few favored seats, all too few for the sixteen contending members. The next thing that happened was that the unprovided for delegates at large slipped into some other delegates chair, if he or she got there in time, and then the district delegates felt imposed upon, believing themselves deprived of their sovereign privileges and more hard feeling resulted. This will recur everytime such large delegations are sent.

The great number of delegates at large, big men and prominent women, enables this number to supply all of the important posts on committees to which a state might aspire and succeed in attaining. This deprives the district delegates from a chance at the important work for which they, in many cases, are better adapted. Consequently, it is soon felt that since the delegates at large are so much in the lead that the others would have acted wisely if they had remained at home and let them occupy their seats when there would be plenty of room for all. It is not surprising, under such circumstances, to hear of folks at a convention talking about the tail wagging the dog.

The idea of selecting so many delegates at large is akin to the idea of selecting honorary pall bearers. Honorary pall bearersr are chosen from a bunch of the very select friends of the deceased. When a family decides on a long list of pall bearers for their departed member, invariably the mistake occurs that some very dear and cherished friend is left off of the list who had as much right to be on it as any other that did appear. Pain and sometimes mortification results most naturally. Delegates at large are chosen from the big leaders of the party who have contributed to its successes or financial coffers. However great the number, some are sure to be ignored who have every reason in the world to be considered as valuable to the party as those selected. If the distribution of votes to the national assembly is to be dished out as "political pie" then send as many as can be accomodated in the hotels of the big cities. If delegates are sent to transact the business of the convention, then confine it justly to the number specified by the votes to which the state is entitled. Certainly Texas has forty men and women capable of transacting the business brought up every four years and the addition of more than that befuddles rather than adds to the brain power of the delegation.

THE EDITORIAL OF THE DAY

A SCHOOL IN A MILL TOWN

The new high school building at Gastonia, N. C., has been completed at a cost of $500,000.

It has an auditorium seating 1650 people, a pipe organ costing $15,000, a stage for plays, a motion picture outfit, a cafeteria, a library, a refrigerating plant, a swimming pool, a gymnasium, a machine shop, and departments for teaching wood working, printing, typewriting, bookkeeping, millinery and dressmaking, domestic science, and modern science, all in addition to the regular class rooms.

Gastonia exists almost solely because of its cotton mills, of which it has 100. North Carolina is the State over which the child labor amendment advocates have been losing sleep. If some of the extremists in that movement were to be believed, Gastonia would not need any schools. The children would have no time from their grinding toil in the mills to spend in school.

The new Gastonia high school, however, indicates that the people in that mill town not only send their children to school but have a pretty fair idea of the kind of education needed. The educational facilities of the center of Southern textile manufacturing no doubt compare favorably with those of many of the towns from which come the loudest wails about child labor in the South.

The picture of this magnificent school building is in strong contrast to the picture of horrible conditions among children in the mill districts that have been painted by the anti-child labor enthusiasts. One wonders, after looking at this former picture, if the State of North Carolina is not as capable of regulating its child labor affairs, as is a bureau of hirelings at Washington.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Approximately 125 amateur wrestlers are contending at Madison Square Garden in the Olympic try outs. Bouts were started at 11 a. m. in order that the finals might be finished by tonight. William Johnson, Columbia mat star, threw Eugene Grettan, University of Iowa, in the first round. Guy Lookabough, Indian grappler from Oklahoma A. & M. College, defeated C. R. Burr, Cornell.

LONDON.—Miss Helen Wills has retired from the limelight of pre-Wimbledon tennis tournament to the disappointment of critics who have not tired of comparing her game with that of Suzanne Lenglen. From what they have seen of the California girl, the British agree she appears the harder hitter of the two but some way the American champion lacks Lenglen's "tennis brain."

PARIS.—The Matin's Nice correspondent interviewed Suzanne Lenglen who declared her health was completely restored and that she certainly will enter the Olympics.

CINICNNATI.—The condition of Rube Marquard, pitcher for the Boston Braves, who is dangerously ill here, today gave his physicians much encouragement. Rube turned for the better yesterday and today held the improvement.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 27—Some weeks ago Earl Coopere and his mechanician, Earl Dutton, were tuning up the Studebaker Special out in Los Angeles, after winning a race on the west coast. They noticed a snowy-haired veteran who was intensely interested.

He used to keep his eyes focused on the tiny Studebaker. The car seemed to have some strange fascination for him Both Dutton and Cooper noticed it. So one day Cooper said to him.

"Mister, you seem to admire that midget gas gondola Does it look good to you?"

He laughed, and, I swear, there were tears in his eyes. He put his hand affectionately on the radiator, and said

"Son that car is just like a grand son o' mine Just like my own flesh and blood Why' When I was a youth, I was helpin' to make Studebakers myself"

"Yes, I was hired by Clem and J M Studebaker, back in South Bend nearly 70 years ago, to paint the carriages they made. We took a blessed lot of pride in fixin' up those carriages And now—here's this Studebaker racer. Some different from the old carriages But still a Studebaker.'

Gets His Job Back

The aged man was N. M Henlershott, 89-years old, one of Los Angeles' oldest citizens When he was 19 years old he was painting Studebaker wagons and carriages. And so Earl Cooper, deciding to repaint his car, delighted him by suggesting that he paint it if he desired.

The veteran set to work He mixed the colors. He worked night and day.

At the speedyway during the trials, you see a sleek racing car, whizzing around the track It is Robin Egg Blue, trimmed in gold A vivid, unique and eye-arresting sight.

No carriage of old received more painstakin attention Hurtling thru space it carries the blessing of an old time master painter of long ago.

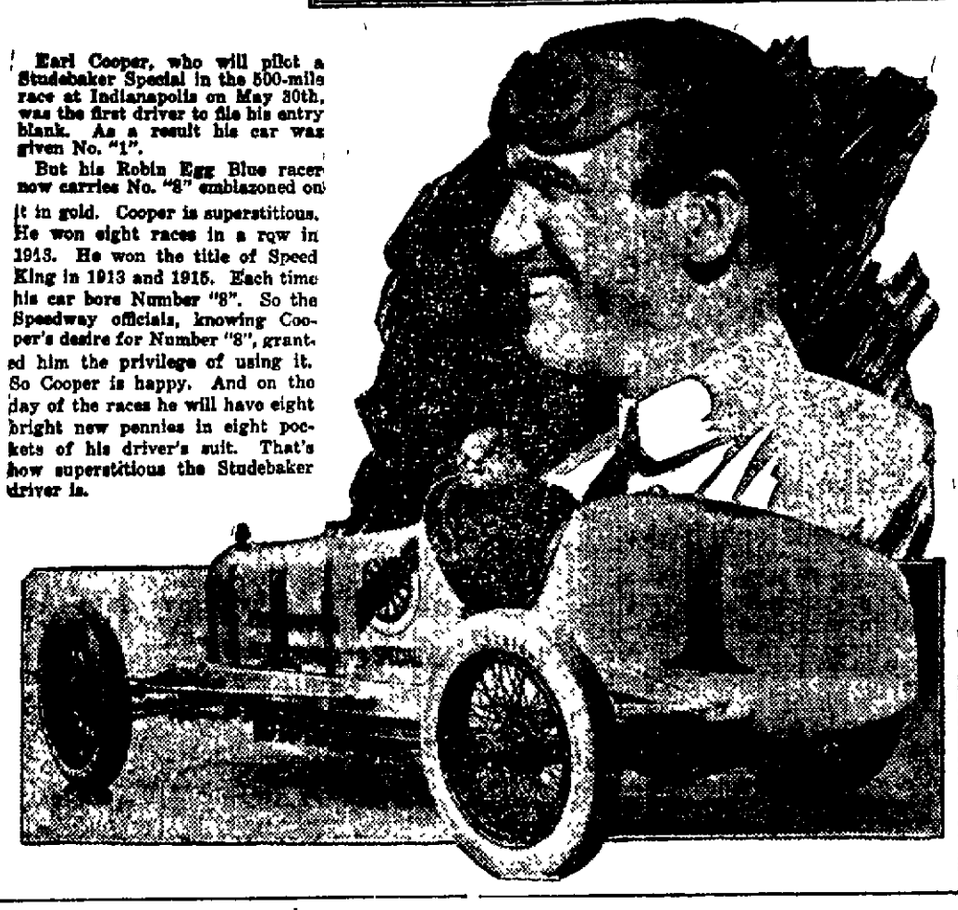
Ned Seely, right fielder for the Gushers, was walked three times and then hit a double to right center. He had a good day in the field also. With two men on, Thomas walked him to get to Butler, a left handed hitter. Butler greeted Thomas' offerings with a nice single to right.

Race Officials Help Cooper Kill Jinx. Give Him Old Number "8"



Earl Cooper, who will pilot a Studebaker Special in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis on May 30th, was the first driver to file his entry blank. As a result his car was given No. "1".

But his Robin Egg Blue racer now carries No. "8" emblazoned on it in gold. Cooper is superstitious. He won eight races in a row in 1913. He won the title of Speed King in 1913 and 1915. Each time his car bore Number "8". So the Speedway officials, knowing Cooper's desire for Number "8", granted him the privilege of using it. So Cooper is happy. And on the day of the races he will have eight bright new pennies in eight pockets of his driver's suit. That's how superstitious the Studebaker driver is.

Pugilists Train For Big Fight May 31st

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 27.—Tommy Gibbons and Georges Carpentier, who meet here in a 10-round bout May 31, may use similar action in the ring, but their training programs are widely different.

Carpentier, always fearful lest he overtrain and go stale before a fight, takes things easy and mixes his heavy work with the lightest forms of recreation.

Gibbons, on the other hand, is a glutton for work and relishes nothing more than an afternoon of slugging with his partners.

Georges yesterday went fishing. Tommy battered three sparring mates through nine rounds of boxing and then topped off the day with bag punching and leg exercises.

Heving hit a long sacrifice fly in the second that scored the Gushers' first run and sent a sizzling single to left in the eighth. He is occupying the center garden now.

1,000 EXTRAS APPLAUDED MARION DAVIES PLUCK

Marion Davies showed such pluck and gameness during the filming of the whipping scene for her Cosmopolitan picture, "Little Old New York" that the thousand extras who were employed in the scene gave her a rousing cheer. Perched on the shoulder of big Louis Wolheim Miss Davies was being rushed through the throng to the whipping post. Wolheim's foot slipped, Miss Davies lost her balance and feell to the floor striking her head so hard that she was rendered unconscious. Reviving in a few minutes she insisted on continuing with the scene. "Little Old New York," will be seen for the last time today at the National Theatre. As Patricia O'Day, Miss Davies assumes the role of a boy. Her exciting adventures in America often get her into trouble and once into real danger when she is pursued by a mob adn tied up to the whipping post. The picture was adapted to the screen by Luther Reed from the stage play by Rida Johnson Young. Sidney Olcott directed it and Joseph Urban designed the settings.

Mrs. E. H. Hines formerly of Mexia whose home is now in Groesbeck was in the city Tuesday having her eyes seen after and exchanging greetings with old friends and acquaintances.

N. Y. Boxing Commission May Suspend Several Champions

By HENRY L. FARRELL

NEW YORK, May 27.—Suspension of several champions is expected as result of another campaign of the New York Boxing Commission against "title nursers"

The commission lost the decision when William Muldoon made his first attempt to force Joe Lynch and Mickey Walker to fight by ruling them out as champions and setting up new ones in their places.

Walker, welterweight champion, is in bad again because he refused to accept the challenge of Dave Shade, California contender and probably will be set down as soon as he exposes his chin to the Commission.

Walker has no New York licenses and the Commission can't inflict any penalties on him until he applies for a permit to do business in the State. When Johnny Kilbane was hiding out with the featherweight championship he refused to apply for a New York license and the commission had to sit back and take the laugh when the former champion said it was all a a joke and that he didn't want to fight in New York.

The late Jack Bulger, former manager of Walker, promised the commission the welterweight champion would defend his title against any opponent named for him and Shade was appointed. The time limit for the acceptance for the match expired yesterday.

Walker wants to get a big shot with Benny Leonard in New Jersey before he risks his title in a decision bout and as long as he is not in bad with the New Jersey officials he probably will ignore the threats of the New York body.

Johnny Dundee was ordered to defend his featherweight championship by accepting a match with Johnny Leonard, of Allentown. Leonard, however, was beaten last week by Tony Vaccarelli and Vacarelli is Dundee's sparring partner. The commission will have to find another challenger.

Frank Harding and Joe Heving who reported from the Grand Rapids club of the Michigan-Ontario league are getting ino shape now. Harding states that he has been wearing two woolen shirts in the North and still did not get warm. He has discarded his woolen one for a real thin one now and is getting up plenty of steam. He hit two good hot singles Tuesday. He is reputed to be a flash on the bases.

The Austin Rangers are experiencing some trouble these days. Manager Griggs and Donald Flynn, the Wild Irish Rose, have departed from the capitol city. We understand that Fats Fleharty has the managerial reins now.

Bob Crow pitched a good brand of ball against the Indians yesterday and should have had a shut out but for a glaring error made by Lance in the first inning.

Boy Steals $20 And Wheel from Grocery

Mexia officers recovered a bicycle stolen from the Kaufman Street Grocery by a boy twelve years of age Monday. While recovering the wheel it was discovered that the youngster had also appropriated about $20 in cash from the store. The money and the wheel were returned to the store and the boy turned over to his parents for correction.

Pneumonia High At Beaumont

BEAUMONT, May 28.—Pneumonia, dreaded aftermath of changeable winter weather and given but little thought during summer months, stood at the top of the mortality list in Beaumont during the month of April, according to a report of the city health department.

Five persons, all adults, died from pneumonia during the month; four from cancer and four from diseases of the heart. City officers are taking steps to halt another such pneumonia record.

CAUTION, NOT PESSIMISM, SHOULD BE PRESENT POLICY

By S. W. STRAUS,
President American Society for Thrift

IN many lines of trade and industry throughout the country there is a distinct slowing up at the present time. The wheels of business are turning less rapidly. However, this situation is not one calling for a pessimistic attitude, but it does challenge our caution and conservatism, which are always safe policies.

S. W. STRAUS

Plans for the future should be laid along careful lines, and, above everything else, there should be the elimination of all possible waste.

As a reassuring element, it should be borne in mind that the building industry, while showing unmistakable tendencies toward more restricted production in the immediate future, gives every evidence of proceeding in substantial volume. This is the key industry of the situation. No other line of business has as many ramifications, so that when building conditions are active and sound it reasonably may be assumed that general business will not be subjected to great hardship.

There is every indication that the coming summer and fall will witness a larger amount of building throughout the United States than was produced in 1923, and it may not fall greatly short of last year which was the banner period for the industry. Actual construction work now in operation is large, and building permits in the leading cities and towns of the nation were in larger volume during the first four months of 1924 than they were during the same period last year.

Therefore, even though the curve of activity is beginning to descend, an attitude of general confidence should prevail.

Thrift is always advantageous and advisable but at periods when business in general is proceeding along more cautious lines it is an especially good time to practice greater efficiency whenever possible. Widespread appreciation of the value of eliminating waste will put the entire nation on a more substantial footing.

Judge and Mrs. W. M. White had trouble on their way to Waco to the State convention Tuesday morning. This mishap prevented them from arrival there until noon, missing the morning session. The auto stopped near Elk and about twelve miles this side of Waco. Almost on the same spot Chief Albert Mace and Judge I. W. Keys had tire trouble, without tools or a spare, and after much sweating and impatience went in to Waco on the rim.

PIMPLES & BUMPS TAKE THE JOY OUT OF LIFE

Girls, and boys, too, whose faces are "broken out," rough, pimply and blotched, imagine all sorts of weird things.

The worst fault it leads to is using just anything which promises them relief from their condition, which oftener makes their trouble worse. Never put anything on your skin which has not been proven by the test of time and public opinion to be right. In this connection the phenomenal success, which is called Black and White Ointment, and the soap, too, offers sufferers from such skin diseases the one reliable and dependable means of relief and restoration of their skin to that clear, smooth and lovely condition it was in their youth.

Black and White Ointment, and Soap, are economically priced, in liberal size packages. The 50c size of the ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap.—(Adv.)

Noted Singer Dies Of Heart Disease

NEW YORK, May 27.—"He was trying to do too much because the public which loved him demanded more than he could give."

This tribute by his personal physician, was given today as cause of heart disease which led to the death of Victor Herbert, leading American light opera composer, late Monday.

Herbert collapsed as he was mounting the stairs to the office of his doctor, Emmanuel Barruch. He died in a few minutes.

The funeral will be at his home here at 2 p. m. tomorrow, with services later in St. Thomas Church and burial in Woodlawn cemetery.

Herbert was 64 years of age, and had been king of America light opera for years. His tunes were known throughoue the world.

The composer was born in Dublin and was educated as a musician by his grandfather, Samuel Lover, the Irish poet and novelist. He spent his life in the United States and nearly all his great successes were written in this country—beginning with "Babes in Toyland" in 1903, and running down through a succession of hits to his current songs.

News of the death cast a shadow over the theatrical district of Broadway where Herbert was a widely known and well loved figure. Herbert's widow, who was the prima donna Augusta Forster, and two children survive.

Only Storm Center At State Convention Was Around Dists.

A. Garland Adair of Mexia, endorsed by Freestone county in convention assembled for delegate to the National convention were duly presented to the District caucus. For more than an hour, the nine counties forming this district balloted on their choice of district delegates, with Limestone County casting every vote, as instructed for Judge Bradley, and Freestone county casting every vote, as instructed, fo Garland Adair. W. E Jackson of Hillsboro and Judge W. C. Davis of Bryan were the ultimate selections

About eleven o'clock, the convention authorized the district delegations to assemble in their caucuses in the big colliseum at the Cotton Palace grounds in Waco, for the purpose of selecting their members of the committees to which each district was entitled and to elect the two district delegates to the National gathering The eighteen delegations, assembled in the auditorium under their own banners, promptly were called by their respective chairmen to various places about over the building to carry out these instructions.

The Sixth District, with more than a hundred delegates present, met like several other districts, in the corridors of the coliseum, where it was soon seen that confusion was certain to ensue from the unsatisfactory meeting place. However, amidst the milling around of men and women, and the chatter of the crowd, all of the work of the caucus was dispatched, except the choosing of the delegates. It was then decided that each county should elect three members of their delegations to meet in a room of the building and make the selections. George Perkins, chairman of the Limestone County delegation appointed Joe D. Arrington, Ben B. Hunt of Mexia and Scott Reed of Groesbeck on this committee. The committees immediately met in a room, the entrance of which was wide and permitted spectators and auditors to assemble around to watch and hear the proceedings. It proved to be the hardest contest of any of the district caucuses. Scores congregated around the entrance and watched with interest while it was stated on the inside more than forty ballots were taken before the ultimate choices were determined upon.

The caucus decided to vote on one man at a time. W. E. Jackson was easily elected early in the balloting, he having the vote of the larger counties of the district. By this time, Brazos county had offered the name of W. C. Davis for the other place on the delegation, after having cast its five votes early in the balloting for the Mexia man. At one time Judge Bradley was declared elected. Hill county having made the lead possible by casting its 13 votes for him. Scott Reed promptly made a motion to make it unanimous for Judge Bradley. Hill county then showed some dissatisfaction over its vote, the delegates claiming that they had been misled by the chairman. A motion was offered to permit Hill county reconsider its vote, which carried and the Hill county delegation then cast their vote for Judge Davis. This eliminated the other two names and in a short while the Bryan jurist was declared the winner.

The alternates chosen were H. O. Tatum of Wortham and W. R. Howell of Corsicana.

Delegate Jackson formerly resided in Limestone County.

For elector, Joe Arrington received the vote of the entire delegation with the exception of Madison county which gave five votes to Hon. Rufus Hardy, former congressman from this district, of Corsicana.

The subject of the Klan was not mentioned in the caucus but it was generally understood that the counties of the district with the largest vote and several of the others were represented by a majority of Klansmen as was the State as a whole, and the statement was generally made that the opposition of the Klan to Judge Bradley prevented his selection.

The work of the district caucus was later ratified by the State convention, which also passed on the reports rendered by all of the other seventeen districts.

As the sun went down, squabbling began, the first to be recorded during the day on the floor of the convention. Governor Neff, it will be recalled, has recently declared that too much harmony is dangerous, and those who subscribed to that doctrine certainly had an opportunity to witness some friction bordering on ferocity. At that juncture several district delegations presented minority reports on the subject of delegates to the National convention. The tenth district caucus resulted in the selection of Tom Gambrell of Lockhart and Harper Kirby of Austin. A minority report was tendered offering the name of P. C. Maynard of Bastrop as a substitute for Harper Kirby.

"He's not for McAdoo" was the war whoop that called to battle the rapidly decreasing crowd of delegates. When promise of a convention fight appeared many settled in their seats and hundreds crowded around the speaker's stand and the big gavel, some saying that this was what they had come for, inferring that they preferred a scrap rather than harmony brought about by a heavy steam roller which had all during the day flattened every thing that came in its path.

The debate raged for nearly an hour, the high spots being when a "little fighing demon" from the district involved was recognized by the chair and used such language as that 'Gimlet headed crowd of antiprohibitions," affirming that he was little but that he was bigger than that entire bunch that was fighting Harper Kirby who had done more for the prohibition cause than any man in Texas. Cyclone Davis held his seht as long as he could and finally arose to atack Mr. Kirby. He stated that when he made the opening speech in Washington to make the capitol city go dry that Underwood, supporters of Smith and other notorius wets led the campaign against the cause and fought negro votes to keep the city wet. He then stated that the papers had led him to believe that Harper Kirby had back slid and had been fighting for Underwood. Mr. Kirby, who had until then remained silent in the controversy, arose and stated that Cyclone Davis was a liar if he said that he had supported or said anything favorable to the candidacy of Underwood.

"Are you for McAdoo?" came the question from scores of lips all over the auditorium. He looked in the direction of one man who had said something about his stand against McAdoo and stated "I know Mr. McAdoo better than you do." He also added that he was always willing to bow to the will of the people when the voice of the people had been heard. His attitude was considered rather weak for McAdoo and as a result his name was blotted off the delegation. Cyclone Davis ended his speech by saying that he did not believe in sending the devil out to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. This statement summed up the attitude of the convention in sending an anti-McAdoo man to vote for McAdoo. Another significant statement by Mr. Davis was that he hoped he could always pray for the man he voted for and also to vote for the man he prayed for. His apology to Harper Kirby when the lie had been passed was so couched that no hard feelings resulted, Mr| Davis stating that he would most certainly accept any word from Mr. Kirby as truth in preference to what the newspapers might say.

Bexar county district also tendered a minority report to unseat on the national delegation Frank Davis of Austin. The chair ruled the motion of the minority out of order on the grounds that the convention had no authority, to override any district which had been instructed to vote for McAdoo. His ruling was objected to and a motion to appeal from the decision of the chair was voted down vociferously, the man with the big maul thus appearing to be in full control and steady until the last act of the convention, when he was unanimously thanked for his work, as the lights came on and the delegates hurried out.

COLORED YOUTH INDICTED ON CHARGES OF BURGLARY

Frank Smith, 17, colored, was taken off a freight train Saturday night at Bryan by Mexia officers and brought to Groesbeck charged with burglary and theft. He is said to have entered the servant's house at the home of Nelson Forrest and to have stolen a number of articles belonging to the cook. He had with him at the time of his arrest, it is stated, a phonograph and several other articles of value.

He was indicted on four charges by the grand jury at Groesbeck.

Death Ray Invention May Be Obtained by French Government

By LLOYD ALLEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, May 27.—France appears likely to get the death ray invention by Grindell Mathews, a Britisher.

Angered by his own Government's low offer for the allegedly diabolical invention which may revolutionize war, Mathews packed his bags in a huff and announced he was taking an airplane to Paris at noon to do business with the French Government. Some skepticism on the part of the British Air Ministry appeared to have added to the inventor's indignation. After a two hour demonstration yesterday held in secret behind barred and guarded doors at Mathews' laboratory, officials of the Ministry reported to the Government on the merits of the death ray. The Government communicated with Mathews, proposing another "simple, but more conclusive test."

The inventor said today that the British Government had offered him only one thousand pounds for the secret of the ray and had made this offer condition upon further successful tests.

In great indignation he flatly refused the offer.

"Such a sum is too totally ridiculous to talk about," Mathews said. "If I were to accept such miserable terms I would lose the option which the French Government holds. Then the British Government could treat me as it pleases, which, judging from experience, is not over generously."

Mathews said he was sorry that his own Government was not to get the death ray, which he claims will kill men at great distances, bring down airplanes and put warships out of commission.

"It is not my fault," the inventor added.

Meanwhile it developed that the Air Ministry has been experimenting with a death ray all its own on which progress has been made.

THE WORLD IN TABLOID

UNDATED.—Returns from four state primaries and conventions show that Texas Democrats instructed for McAdoo as are Montana democrats. In West Virginia Coolidge received republican support and as there was no democratic candidate the delegation will be uninstructed. Coolidge also received the indorsement of the Montana republicans as well as from Texas..

FORT SMITH, Ark.—Fort Smith last night was struck by a 62-mile wind which wrecked a part of the Fort Smith Light & Traction Company power plant, stalled street cars all over the city, put more than 900 telephones out of commission, and uprooted trees.

HUTCHINSON, Kas.—The prosecution prepared to complete its case today in the trial of Dr. Kenn B. Uhls, charged with murdering W. E. Gibbs to obtain $100,000 worth of stock which Gibbs had purchased in a sanitarium operated by the doctor. Witnesses showed Gibbs had the stock in his possession Dec. 20, eight days before the murder. Uhls contended that the certificates had been transferred Dec. 19, by Gibbs to a man known as Waterhaven who has never been found.

TOKIO.—Formal protest against immigration legislation excluding Japanese from the United States was expected to be drafted by the Cabinet today.

ATOKA, Ok.—Five persons were known dead today and several injured in a tornado which swept across the open country north of here during the night, according to meager advices today. J. L. Jett and four of his family were crushed to death when the storm demolished their home five miles north of Stringtown.. Telephone wires were torn down and crops damaged considerably over the country. WHY BANKS?

LESSON VIII

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

Why open a savings account in a savings bank?

SAVINGS—money set aside by keeping expenditures below income, which is essential to individual as well as to business success.

J. H. Puelicher

ACCOUNT—accurate record, as applied to savings in a bank, of deposits and withdrawals, showing also earnings from interest; savings banks will open an account with one dollar—the amount most depositors have started with.

SAVINGS BANK—a safe place to deposit savings where they will earn interest; the bank gives the depositor a pass-book, that is, an account book showing deposits, interest credited, withdrawals and balance. Many banks not called savings banks now conduct savings departments.

A savings account in a bank indicates and encourages thrift which is an essential aid to success. Unlike money hoarded, money in the bank is safe from loss by fire or thieves, earns interest and is put to use by the banks in developing the community.

MILLIONS ACCEPT THE THEORIES OF M. ANDRE

Great Chemist's Ideas On Health Are o Reasonable and Clear that Men of Science as Well as the Masses Are Astonished by Their Simplicity and Truth.

France has produced many renowned soldiers, scientists and philosophers but never in her history perhaps have the teachings of any one man so electrified the great masses everywhere as those propounded by M. Andre. The noted scientist's theories on health and how, once lost, it may be regained, are so clear and easily understood, and withal so reasonable, that men of science are astonished by their truth and simplicity. Recently he stated:

"Nature intended for us to be healthy and strong and it is only through violation of her laws that our stomachs, our nerves, and our strength are broken down. Poor health is an unnatural artificial condition; one might almost say that it is an acquired habit. But no matter how desperate the case, one great, encouraging, and fundamental fact stands out above all others: Nature is constantly working on our side to restore us, and with the proper assistance she will succeed.

M. PIERRE ANDRE
Discoverer of Karnak

Like Healthy Child.

"It takes a long time, even with the greatest abuse, to break down our systems and shatter our health, and what it has taken years to tear down cannot be rebuilt in a day. Do not expect a few doses of Karnak to give back that which has taken years to squander. A few doses will help you and make you feel better, yes; but you want to be fully restored, to feel fine all the time, to be so well and strong that you enjoy every minute of your waking hours and sleep like a healthy child at night.

"This, with co-operation, may be accomplished in less time than you think. Remember that Karnak is composed of the most beneficial roots, barks and herbs known to science, and that Nature too is working on your side. You will very probably begin to feel better after taking Karnak only two or three days, but do not retard the good work it is doing by over-indulgence. Eat plenty of good wholesome food, but not too much; get plenty of sleep. Keeping the bowels open is a matter of first importance. Plenty of fresh air, too, helps and hastens the restorative results Karnak will accomplish. Exercise moderately.

Not a False Stimulant

"Karnak builds, strengthens and tones up the entire system; helps Nature overcome unhealthy conditions and restore the vitality and strength in a natural, lasting way. It is the only safe and permanent way to rebuild the health. Any medicine that works quicker than this is a false stimulant and eventually will do more harm than good.

"The stomach is the fountain-head of health or disease, and is usually the first of our organs to break down. And once the stomach breaks down we are beset with nervousness, weakness, auto-intoxication, palpitation and many other symptoms and diseases that are the natural offspring of impaired digestion and a badly nourished, weakened condition. People who take Karnak are often amazed by the complete disappearance of troubles that had defied other treatment for years and apparently had no connection with stomach trouble or the nourishment of the body.

"This is because a healthy, strong body naturally resists and throws off disease and Karnak helps Nature build up and strengthen the body to the point where Nature itself overcomes these troubles."

The announcement yesterday that M. Andre's famous medicine is now obtainable in this city created wide-spread interest and scores of people have already availed themselves of the opportunity to secure it. The phenomenal success of Karnak as a health-builder is the sensation of the drug trade.

Karnak is sold in Mexia by the Mexia Drug Co.—(Adv.)

HOME DRESSMAKING

By JEANNE ROLAND
(Copyright 1924 by Pek-Art Service, Inc.)

Styles a Young Chap Likes

Playtime Suit of Obvious Individuality

Individuality of line with excellence of service are coupled in this playtime suit. At this season it is most effective developed in linen, the pants of check material and the collar and cuffs corresponding with the pants.

There is not a single young chap who would not be delighted with this playtime suit, because it gives comfort to the wearer and is extremely stylish in appearance as well. Even at the tender age of six the moderns of today are critical in the matter of clothes. One yard of checked and three-quarter yard of plain linen or other material will be sufficient to make the suit for a boy of four years.

The collar is bound with plain braid, as are the belt and cuffs. In addition to the braid the collar features an embroidered star, which is worked in cotton to match the check material. A star is made just like an arrowhead (Fig. I) with the exception that two more points are added. Figure II shows how the arrowhead is begun. In the first place, run a colored thread the exact shape and in the place where the star is to be. Bring the thread out from the under side of the work, at the lower left-hand corner. Each point of the star is worked separately. Carry the thread upward to the point of the angle, taking a very short straight stitch under the point. Then carry the thread downward to the right-hand corner and take a straight stitch underneath, bringing the point of the needle out at the right of and as near the place where the thread was first brought through as possible. To make the star, the stitches from points B and C in Fig. II must progress downward toward the center of the star, instead of straight across as in the arrowhead.

The stitches at the top of the work are all taken outside of the previous stitches, while the stitches at the tower points of the star are taken inside of all of the preceding ones.

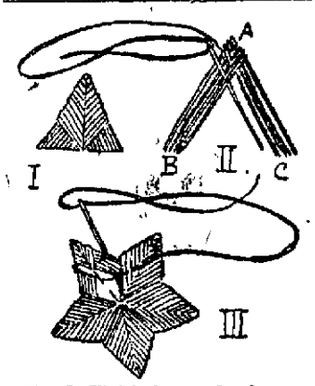

Fig. I—Finished arrowhead.
Fig. II—Process of making arrowhead.
Fig. III—The star.

The front of the blouse is slashed and worked on either side with eyelets to match the star. Through the eyelets a string tie is laced and finished in a bow at the base of the collar, instead of at the back of the slash in the blouse.

A single band of braid is stitched down the side of the pants, which are cut straight at the lower edges. While this trimming easily may be omitted, it adds to the dressiness of the model without making more work for the home dressmaker than can be done in a few minutes.

Peddy's Side May Rest Case

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Early ending of the Senate investigation into the Mayfield election seems probable. A move to end the inquiry and make a report in the case is taking shape. Mayfield's counsel say they can complete their side of the case in a few days, and Peddy's counsel may be compeled to rest the case unless the committee permits general issues involving the Klan to be introduced.

Americans Try Also To Learn Of "Death Ray"

By WEBB MILLER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, May 28.—Americans have entered the race to obtain the secret of Grindell Mathews' death ray, Mathews said today.

With Great Britain, the inventor's own country, and France in competition for the diabolical invention which it is claimed may revolutionize war and make the naton which holds it supreme, Mathews gave out that he had received a written from the United States.

Other reports said that the National Academy of Science at Washington had cabled the inventor, asking particulars adn that American naval attaches here had been ordered to investigate Mathews' claims.

American officials here denied that the United States Government was in any way interested in the ray.

The inventor kept in hiding most of the day, possibly for the purpose avoding process servers.

Meanwhile both French and British claim to have a definite contract with the inventor entitling them to a share in the deadly ray, which kills at great distance, explodes ammunition, destroys machinery and brings down airplanes in flames, according to Mathews.

When the latter, angry because he British Government offered him but one thousand pounds for the invention, flew from England to France yesterday, he was pursued at the last minute by a lawyer with a writ of injunction obtained on behalf of some Englishmen who claim 52 per cent of the rights in the ray.

Mathews today denied that these countrymen of his had a contract and said their option expired a month ago.

"The latest Britinsh offers have been unsatisfactory," he said. "I'm going to wait until Friday afternoon. If no satisfactory proposition is forthcoming from my own country. I will sign a contract with a French firm at Lyons."

The French firm to which he refers, headed by one M. Royer, insists Mathews already has signed contracts providing for delivery of the diabolical ray to France.

Mathews, after interviewing Royer's representative here and finding that the British had started action in the French courts to restrain him from selling his secret in France, disappeared, ray and all. It was believed he had gone to Lyons.

The inventor's position is that the French offer is sufficient to enable him to go on with this and other inventions while the British was so small he would have had to "dselose the basic secret without assurance of future compensation."

Carpentier To Meet Gibbons In Three Days

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 28.—In three days Georges Carpentier and Tommy Gibbons meet here in their 10-round bout, but the "experts" and the betting fraternity still are wonder ing which scrapper to entrust with their predictions and money.

A surprising change in sentiment in favor of Carpentier has developed dur ing the past few days. Heretofore, sentiment was overwhelmingly in Gibbons' favor. This was due to a number of reasons, chief among them being the memory of his standing off Jack Dempsey for the full fifteen rounds at Shelby, Mont., while Carpentier fell in four rounds; the fact he is a superb boxer; is always trained to a fighting edge; and because he was on display here long before Carpentier arrived.

Now the experts are weighing Carpentier's brilliancy as a boxer, quick thinker and famed "leaping right" sleep producer, against Gibbons' masterly boxing, methodical mind and what they term "rather light punching power."

Bishop's Case To Be Decided By Head Bishop

CLEVELAND, Ohio., May 28.—Whether the tribunal of nine bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church trying Bishop William Montgomery Brown for heresy here, has jurisdiction in the case will be ruled upon today by presiding Bishop John Murray, of Baltimore.

The question was raised by Brown's counsel when the trial opened in Trinity Cathedral yesterday afternoon

Joseph W. Sharts, Dayton, Ohio, Socialist candidate for Governor of Ohio, and Edward N. Bushnell, attorneys for Brown, indicated today they would continue to fight hard to have the charges against the retired bishop of Arkansas dismissed.

As a result preliminary battles may delay actual taking of evidence several days.

Brown's counsel indicated they would question the impartiality of the tribunal and would file two new motions to have the case dismissed.

Charles Dibble, Kalamazoo, Mich., church advocate and "prosecutor," said today the "defendent's" whole argument is an issue of contradictions and reality.

"The contention of the defendant that his trial is improper would result in making the bishop an absolute monarch in his own domain," he said.

The girl who was living here with her aunt and attending the St. Yavier's school, disappeared last week. Police started a search, believing she had been kidnaped.

Gertrude was found last night, however, living in the apartment of Bert H. Jeffrey, riding master. She sought the companionship of Jeffrey, she explained, because she was "tired of that stuffy old school room and wanted an adventure in romance."

"We planned to be married, of course," she said, "and will yet if my aunt will let us."

Texas Democrats Still Dominate The Political Life Of The State

There was a band wagon as well as the old gray mare band from Brownwood present at the State convention of Texas democrats at Waco Tuesday. It was owned by William Gibbs McAdoo of California. The driver was Marshall Hicks of San Antonio and the four big white beauties that pulled it were Tom Love of Dallas, Alva Bryan of Waco, Z. E. Marvin of Dallas and William A. Hanger of Ft. Worth. Nearly everybody got on the band wagon, which was pleasing alike to owner of the vehicle, to driver of the well greased affair and to the quartet of democrats of this imperial commonwealth.

The forty votes which Texas is to cast in the national democratic convention at Madison Square Garden will be cast "from now on" for the gangling, grey-eyed, sterling son-in-law of the great President Woodrow Wilson, whose praises were sung in a solemn resolution of respect and adoration Tuesday.

It was not a spectacular convention in the main. However, there were times during the sweltering day in which it bore all the earmarks of a "little national convention." For example when Colonel Alvin Owsley was endorsed for the Vice Presidency, there was a parade of banners in which all the districts of Texas participated; then there was much shouting both ways with the pro-Neff delegates in the majority when the Governor was called upon to address the body following resolutions endorsing his administration, followed by an ovation only exceeded by that which Owsley was greeted as the candidate for Vice President, the first ever to be offered by this state.

Emblazoned across the top of the rostrum, high over head where all might see, hung a life size banner supporting the candidacy of Felix D. Robertson for Governor. During the day, a motion prevailed on the floor of the house, although opposed by Hanger, that all other signs supporting candidates be taken down. The fact that Robertson's banner was given a place over all was significant and forecasts the early defense of his candidacy by Tom Love, Alvin Owsley and many other war horses of the democratic party. Those who have persisted in believing that Robertson would be far down the list when the vote of the people is taken were cognizant that he will be a factor to contend with by other candidates in the current campaign.

Among the suspected and unopposed events of the day was the adoption of resolutions declaring Earle B. Mayfield to be the duly elected Senator from Texas and severely criticizing the unwarranted probe now being conducted at Washington.

Pat Neff had his day. He has had many days perhaps but Tuesday's demonstration must have been most pleasing of all to him. The democratic delegates of Texas showed the traditional admiration and esteem of Americans felt for men of courage and frankness and they were impressed that he possessed both qualities when he arose when tendered a place of honor among the delegates at large to the national convetion and respectfully but unmistakably refused the nomination just as he had refused the place of President of the University of Texas when offered that high office by the Board of Regents recently. In an earlier address, human nature prevailed when he fought back with considerable feeling when a number of voices came from one part of the convention hall protested against his appearance on the rostrum for the purpose of speechmaking.

Both of his addresses were characteristic of Neff.

The polished oratory of the occasion was the one delivered by Alvin Owsley when he accepted the endorsement of his state for the office of Vice President and running mate. This man, known to the members of former legislatures as the "Chesterfield of the House," known to soldiers during the conflict as the peerless young orator of the war, and to the world since as the last Commander in Chief of the American Legion, in a most feeling address eloquently expressed the sentiments of gratitude which were in his heart and pledged to do all within the power of his mind and body as he labored in the interest of William Gibbs McAdoo for the Presidency and to help free the nation from the "rottenness of republican rule." He declared his faith again in the belief that America is for 100 per cent Americans.

The resolutions adopted state the stand of Texas democrats on the subject of prohibition. The party, according to this document, is for the enforcement of all laws, and that includes the prohibition laws, and reaffirms its faith in prohibition as a necessity to national development and the safety of American homes. Pat Neff declared that the democrats would not care if the nation became so dry that the Sahara desert would look like the Pacific ocean in comparison and the Democrats assembled applauded and were pleased.

Texas Democrats are going home today or are already there after having attended the convention saying "just as I expected." Newspaper writers are saying "It turned cut just like I said it would" but still there's a lot of them and others wondering how it was that Tom Love was given the reins of party government for four more years in Texas; why Tom Love quit fighting Alvin Owsley and Governor Neff, and wondering what the Governor will do next, while others are declaring that "This old state ain't what she used to be, ain't what she used to be."

But after all the Democratic party is still the dominant political organization in the State of Texas.

The foreign office issued a statement deeply regretting the bill's passage, "despite Japan's protestations."

STORM TOLL IS KNOWN TO BE AROUND 40

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 28.—The known death list of forty resulting from the tordado which struck Mississippi. Alabama and other sections of the South Monday night and Tuesday, is expected to be increased when wire communication is restored with outlying districts still cut off from the outside world.

The tornado was followed by a rainstorm which caused small rivers and creeks to rise to unprecedented levels, heavily damaging crops.

Considerable live stock was lost in the high waters.

Red Cross supplies for the relief of the stricken residents of the storm area are already enroute.

Twelve Cars In Speedway Trials

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 28.—Qualifying trials continued at the Indianapolis Motor Speedyway today for entrants for the 500-mile Decoration Day race with nineteen of the fleetest cars already assured of their starting positions.

Twelve cars are to face the official test today.

The coveted pole position in the start of the race goes to Jimmy Murphy, winner of the 1922 event here. Harry Hartz, piloting a Durant, won second place.

Tommy Milton, twice winner of the 500-mile race, qualified.

Gushers Win From Bathers 8 To 3.

The Gushers came back with a vim to defeat the Marlin Bathers by the decisive score of 8 to 3 Tuesday afternoon after having suffered two defeats at the hands of the Bathers. Sudwick occupied the mound for the home club and did well, while the Gushers hammered the offerings of "Lefty" Thomas for a flock of telling hits which were responsible for the eight scores obtained by the home club.

The Gushers meet the Austin Rangers at Nowlin park. Jeffries will probably pitch for the home club.

INSTANCES OF THE TAIL WAGGING THE DOG

The State Convention Tuesday at Waco decided to send twenty four delegates at large from Texas to the National Convention at New York this summer. It has been a custom of democratic conventions in Texas for years to send a large delegation at large, splitting the four votes among those sent. The districts are confined to two delegates. This policy, easily defended, is dangerous to peace and harmony and leads to injustice and error. A campaign should be begun immediately among Texas democrats to frown down any such practice hereafter.

It leads ultimately and always to a case of the tail wagging the dog when so many of the leading politicians of a state are sent at large, each with a fraction of a vote, the combination overshadowing the district delegates who feel that they are an inconsequential unit of the whole delegation. Thus representative government is defeated to a certain degree.

The forty votes from Texas are distributed two for each Congressional district and two for each Senator. Since it is unwise to split the district vote with more than two delegates, the same rule should obtain as to the splitting of votes with the delegates at large. There has to be a limit and the state should restrict its delegation to the actual number of votes to be cast.

If every state should send large delegations, more in number than their vote implies, it would be difficult, if not impossible to find a convention hall that could seat the convention. At present there are alloted forty seats in Madison Square Garden for the Texans. Who is to have the choice seats is already raised. The district delegates certainly have a right to demand theirs and ought to do so and for the twenty four delegates at large only four chairs have been provided. If the women claim equal rights, they will get two and then the two favored ladies will either have to hold the other five each on their laps or tell them to go on away and crowd into the galleries if they can. If the men are as chivalrous as gentlemen ought to be, then they will give the women all the four seats. Then each woman seated will only have to hold five women each on her lap or tell those who do not get the chairs that they will have to look elsewhere for a place of comfort while deliberating on the important convention issues.

Out at San Francisco in 1920, the only hard words remembered were spoken by some of the delegates at large who felt that they had been unjustly discriimnated against by not getting one of theh few favored seats, all too few for the sixteen contending members. The next thing that happened was that the unprovided for delegates at large slipped into some other delegates chair, if he or she got there in time, and then the district delegates felt imposed upon, believing themselves deprived of their sovereign privileges and more hard feeling resulted. This will recur everytime such large delegations are sent.

The great number of delegates at large, big men and prominent women, enables this number to supply all of the important posts on committees to which a state might aspire and succeed in attaining. This deprives the district delegates from a chance at the important work for which they, in many cases, are better adapted. Consequently, it is soon felt that since the delegates at large are so much in the lead that the others would have acted wisely if they had remained at home and let them occupy their seats when there would be plenty of room for all. It is not surprising, under such circumstances, to hear of folks at a convention talking about the tail wagging the dog.

The idea of selecting so many delegates at large is akin to the idea of selecting honorary pall bearers. Honorary pall bearersr are chosen from a bunch of the very select friends of the deceased. When a family decides on a long list of pall bearers for their departed member, invariably the mistake occurs that some very dear and cherished friend is left off of the list who had as much right to be on it as any other that did appear. Pain and sometimes mortification results most naturally. Delegates at large are chosen from the big leaders of the party who have contributed to its successes or financial coffers. However great the number, some are sure to be ignored who have every reason in the world to be considered as valuable to the party as those selected. If the distribution of votes to the national assembly is to be dished out as "political pie" then send as many as can be accomodated in the hotels of the big cities. If delegates are sent to transact the business of the convention, then confine it justly to the number specified by the votes to which the state is entitled. Certainly Texas has forty men and women capable of transacting the business brought up every four years and the addition of more than that befuddles rather than adds to the brain power of the delegation.

THE EDITORIAL OF THE DAY

A SCHOOL IN A MILL TOWN

The new high school building at Gastonia, N. C., has been completed at a cost of $500,000.

It has an auditorium seating 1650 people, a pipe organ costing $15,000, a stage for plays, a motion picture outfit, a cafeteria, a library, a refrigerating plant, a swimming pool, a gymnasium, a machine shop, and departments for teaching wood working, printing, typewriting, bookkeeping, millinery and dressmaking, domestic science, and modern science, all in addition to the regular class rooms.

Gastonia exists almost solely because of its cotton mills, of which it has 100. North Carolina is the State over which the child labor amendment advocates have been losing sleep. If some of the extremists in that movement were to be believed, Gastonia would not need any schools. The children would have no time from their grinding toil in the mills to spend in school.

The new Gastonia high school, however, indicates that the people in that mill town not only send their children to school but have a pretty fair idea of the kind of education needed. The educational facilities of the center of Southern textile manufacturing no doubt compare favorably with those of many of the towns from which come the loudest wails about child labor in the South.

The picture of this magnificent school building is in strong contrast to the picture of horrible conditions among children in the mill districts that have been painted by the anti-child labor enthusiasts. One wonders, after looking at this former picture, if the State of North Carolina is not as capable of regulating its child labor affairs, as is a bureau of hirelings at Washington.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Approximately 125 amateur wrestlers are contending at Madison Square Garden in the Olympic try outs. Bouts were started at 11 a. m. in order that the finals might be finished by tonight. William Johnson, Columbia mat star, threw Eugene Grettan, University of Iowa, in the first round. Guy Lookabough, Indian grappler from Oklahoma A. & M. College, defeated C. R. Burr, Cornell.

LONDON.—Miss Helen Wills has retired from the limelight of pre-Wimbledon tennis tournament to the disappointment of critics who have not tired of comparing her game with that of Suzanne Lenglen. From what they have seen of the California girl, the British agree she appears the harder hitter of the two but some way the American champion lacks Lenglen's "tennis brain."

PARIS.—The Matin's Nice correspondent interviewed Suzanne Lenglen who declared her health was completely restored and that she certainly will enter the Olympics.

CINICNNATI.—The condition of Rube Marquard, pitcher for the Boston Braves, who is dangerously ill here, today gave his physicians much encouragement. Rube turned for the better yesterday and today held the improvement.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 27.—Some weeks ago Earl Coopere and his mechanician, Earl Dutton, were tuning up the Studebaker Special out in Los Angeles, after winning a race on the west coast. They noticed a snowy-haired veteran who was intensely interested.

He used to keep his eyes focused on the tiny Studebaker. The car seemed to have some strange fascination for him. Both Dutton and Cooper noticed it. So one day Cooper said to him:

"Mister, you seem to admire that midget gas gondola. Does it look good to you?"

He laughed, and, I swear, there were tears in his eyes. He put his hand affectionately on the radiator, and said:

"Son, that car is just like a grand son o' mine. Just like my own flesh and blood. Why! When I was a youth, I was helpin' to make Studebakers myself."

"Yes, I was hired by Clem and J. M. Studebaker, back in South Bend nearly 70 years ago, to paint the carriages they made. We took a blessed lot of pride in fixin' up those carriages. And now—here's this Studebaker racer. Some different from the old carriages. But still a Studebaker."

Gets His Job Back

The aged man was N. M. Hendershott, 80-years old, one of Los Angeles' oldest citizens. When he was 19 years old he was painting Studebaker wagons and carriages. And so Earl Cooper, deciding to repaint his car, delighted him by suggesting that he paint it if he desired.

The veteran set to work. He mixed the colors. He worked night and day.

At the speedyway, during the trials, you see a sleek racing car, whizzing around the track. It is Robin Egg Blue, trimmed in gold. A vivid, unique and eye-arresting sight.

No carriage of old received more painstakin attention. Hurtling thru space it carries the blessing of an old-time master painter of long ago.

Ned Seely, right fielder for the Gushers, was walked three times and then hit a double to right center. He had a good day in the field also. With two men on, Thomas walked him to get to Butler, a left handed hitter. Butler greeted Thomas' offerings with a nice single to right.

Race Officials Help Cooper Kill Jinx. Give Him Old Number "8"

Earl Cooper, who will pilot a Studebaker Special in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis on May 30th, was the first driver to file his entry blank. As a result his car was given No. "1".

But his Robin Egg Blue racer now carries No. "8" emblazoned on it in gold. Cooper is superstitious. He won eight races in a row in 1913. He won the title of Speed King in 1913 and 1915. Each time his car bore Number "8". So the Speedway officials, knowing Cooper's desire for Number "8", granted him the privilege of using it. So Cooper is happy. And on the day of the races he will have eight bright new pennies in eight pockets of his driver's suit. That's how superstitious the Studebaker driver is.

Pugilists Train For Big Fight May 31st

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., May 27.—Tommy Gibbons and Georges Carpentier, who meet here in a 10-round bout May 31, may use similar action in the ring, but their training programs are widely different.

Carpentier, always fearful lest he overtrain and go stale before a fight, takes things easy and mixes his heavy work with the lightest forms of recreation.

Gibbons, on the other hand, is a glutton for work and relishes nothing more than an afternoon of slugging with his partners.

Georges yesterday went fishing. Tommy battered three sparring mates through nine rounds of boxing and then topped off the day with bag punching and leg exercises.

Heving hit a long sacrifice fly in the second that scored the Gushers' first run and sent a sizzling single to left in the eighth. He is occupying the center garden now.

1,000 EXTRAS APPLAUDED MARION DAVIES PLUCK

Marion Davies showed such pluck and gameness during the filming of the whipping scene for her Cosmopolitan picture, "Little Old New York" that the thousand extras who were employed in the scene gave her a rousing cheer. Perched on the shoulder of big Louis Wolheim Miss Davies was being rushed through the throng to the whipping post. Wolheim's foot slipped, Miss Davies lost her balance and feell to the floor striking her head so hard that she was rendered unconscious. Reviving in a few minutes she insisted on continuing with the scene. "Little Old New York," will be seen for the last time today at the National Theatre. As Patricia O'Day, Miss Davies assumes the role of a boy. Her exciting adventures in America often get her into trouble and once into real danger when she is pursued by a mob adn tied up to the whipping post. The picture was adapted to the screen by Luther Reed from the stage play by Rida Johnson Young. Sidney Olcott directed it and Joseph Urban designed the settings.

Mrs. E. H. Hines formerly of Mexia whose home is now in Groesbeck was in the city Tuesday having her eyes seen after and exchanging greetings with old friends and acquaintances.

N. Y. Boxing Commission May Suspend Several Champions

By HENRY L. FARRELL

NEW YORK, May 27.—Suspension of several champions is expected as result of another campaign of the New York Boxing Commission against "title nursers"

The commission lost the decision when William Muldoon made his first attempt to force Joe Lynch and Mickey Walker to fight by ruling them out as champions and setting up new ones in their places.

Walker, welterweight champion, is in bad again because he refused to accept the challenge of Dave Shade, California contender and probably will be set down as soon as he exposes his chin to the Commission.

Walker has no New York licenses and the Commission can't inflict any penalties on him until he applies for a permit to do business in the State. When Johnny Kilbane was hiding out with the featherweight championship he refused to apply for a New York license and the commission had to sit back and take the laugh when the former champion said it was all a a joke and that he didn't want to fight in New York.

The late Jack Bulger, former manager of Walker, promised the commission the welterweight champion would defend his title against any opponent named for him and Shade was appointed. The time limit for the acceptance for the match expired yesterday.

Walker wants to get a big shot with Benny Leonard in New Jersey before he risks his title in a decision bout and as long as he is not in bad with the New Jersey officials he probably will ignore the threats of the New York body.

Johnny Dundee was ordered to defend his featherweight championship by accepting a match with Johnny Leonard, of Allentown. Leonard, however, was beaten last week by Tony Vaccarelli and Vacarelli is Dundee's sparring partner. The commission will have to find another challenger.

Frank Harding and Joe Heving who reported from the Grand Rapids club ot the Michigan-Ontario league are getting ino shape now. Harding states that he has been wearing two woolen shirts in the North and still did not get warm. He has discarded his woolen one for a real thin one now and is getting up plenty of steam. He hit two good hot singles Tuesday. He is reputed to be a flash on the bases.

The Austin Rangers are experiencing some trouble these days. Manager Griggs and Donald Flynn, the Wild Irish Rose, have departed from the capitol city. We understand that Fats Fleharty has the managerial reins now.

Bob Crow pitvhed a good brand of ball against the Indians yesterday and should have had a shut out but for a glaring error made by Lance in the first inning.

Boy Steals $20 And Wheel from Grocery

Mexia officers recovered a bicycle stolen from the Kaufman Street Grocery by a boy twelve years of age Monday. While recovering the wheel it was discovered that the youngster had also appropriated about $20 in cash from the store. The money and the wheel were returned to the store and the boy turned over to his parents for correction.

Pneumonia High At Beaumont

BEAUMONT, May 28.—Pneumonia, dreaded aftermath of changeable winter weather and given but little thought during summer months, stood at the top of the mortality list in Beaumont during the month of April, according to a report of the city health department.

Five persons, all adults, died from pneumonia during the month; four from cancer and four from diseases of the heart. City officers are taking steps to halt another such pneumonia record.

CAUTION, NOT PESSIMISM, SHOULD BE PRESENT POLICY

By S. W. STRAUS,
President American Society for Thrift

IN many lines of trade and industry throughout the country there is a distinct slowing up at the present time. The wheels of business are turning less rapidly. However, this situation is not one calling for a pessimistic attitude, but it does challenge our caution and conservatism, which are always safe policies.

S. W. STRAUS

Plans for the future should be laid along careful lines, and, above everything else, there should be the elimination of all possible waste.

As a reassuring element, it should be borne in mind that the building industry, while showing unmistakable tendencies toward more restricted production in the immediate future, gives every evidence of proceeding in substantial volume. This is the key industry of the situation. No other line of business has as many ramifications, so that when building conditions are active and sound it reasonably may be assumed that general business will not be subjected to great hardship.

There is every indication that the coming summer and fall will witness a larger amount of building throughout the United States than was produced in 1922, and it may not fall greatly short of last year which was the banner period for the industry. Actual construction work now in operation is large, and building permits in the leading cities and towns of the nation were in larger volume during the first four months of 1924 than they were during the same period last year.

Therefore, even though the curve of activity is beginning to descend, an attitude of general confidence should prevail.

Thrift is always advantageous and advisable, but at periods when business in general is proceeding along more cautious lines it is an especially good time to practice greater efficiency whenever possible. Widespread appreciation of the value of eliminating waste will put the entire nation on a more substantial footing.

Simpson, diminutive outfielder for the Bathers last season joined them here Tuesday. He hit a single, the first time up and the ball was about a foot above his head.

Craig seems to like the Gusher pitching, he having not failed to get at least a double in the three games.

Judge and Mrs. W. M. White had trouble on their way to Waco to the State convention Tuesday morning. This mishap prevented them from arrival there until noon, missing the morning session. The auto stopped near Elk and about twelve miles this side of Waco. Almost on the same spot Chief Albert Mace and Judge I. W. Keys had tire trouble, without tools or a spare, and after much sweating and impatience went in to Waco on the rim.

PIMPLES & BUMPS TAKE THE JOY OUT OF LIFE

Girls, and boys, too, whose faces are "broken out," rough, pimply and blotched, imagine all sorts of weird things.

The worst fault it leads to is using just anything which promises them relief from their condition, which oftener makes their trouble worse. Never put anything on your skin which has not been proven by the test of time and public opinion to be right. In this connection the phenomenal success, which is called Black and White Ointment, and the soap, too, offers sufferers from such skin diseases the one reliable and dependable means of relief and restoration of their skin to that clear, smooth and lovely condition it was in their youth.

Black and White Ointment, and Soap, are economically priced, in liberal size packages. The 50c size of the ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size. All dealers have both the Ointment and the Soap.—(Adv.)

Noted Singer Dies Of Heart Disease

NEW YORK, May 27.—"He was trying to do too much because the public which loved him demanded more than he could give."

This tribute by his personal physician, was given today as cause of heart disease which led to the death of Victor Herbert, leading American light opera composer, late Monday.

Herbert collapsed as he was mounting the stairs to the office of his doctor, Emmanuel Barruch. He died in a few minutes.

The funeral will be at his home here at 2 p. m. tomorrow, with services later in St. Thomas Church and burial in Woodlawn cemetery.

Herbert was 64 years of age, and had been king of America light opera for years. His tunes were known throughoue the world.

The composer was born in Dublin and was educated as a musician by his grandfather, Samuel Lover, the Irish poet and novelist. He spent his life in the United States and nearly all his great successes were written in this country—beginning with "Babes in Toyland" in 1903, and running down through a succession of hits to his current songs.

News of the death cast a shadow over the theatrical district of Broadway where Herbert was a widely known and well loved figure. Herbert's widow, who was the prima donna Augusta Forster, and two children survive.

The Gushers gave Slim Thomas of the Bathers a free pass to the showers Tuesday afternoon and looked at the offerings of Smith for two innings and then hit his slants to all parts of the park.

Only Storm Center At State Convention Was Around Dists.

A. Garland Adair of Mexia, endorsed by Freestone county in convention assembled for delegate to the National convention were duly presented to the District caucus. For more than an hour, the nine counties forming this district ballotted on their choice of district delegates, with Limestone County casting every vote, as instructed, for Judge Bradley, and Freestone county casting every vote, as instructed, for Garland Adair. W. E. Jackson of Hillsboro and Judge W. C. Davis of Bryan were the ultimate selections.

About eleven o'clock, the convention authorized the district delegations to assemble in their caucuses in the big colliseum at the Cotton Palace grounds in Waco, for the purpose of selecting their members of the committees to which each district was entitled and to elect the two district delegates to the National gathering. The eighteen delegations, assembled in the auditorium under their own banners, promptly were called by their respective chairmen to various places about over the building to carry out these instructions.

The Sixth District, with more than a hundred delegates present, met like several other districts, in the corridors of the coliseum, where it was soon seen that confusion was certain to ensue from the unsatisfactory meeting place. However, amidst the milling around of men and women, and the chatter of the crowd, all of the work of the caucus was dispatched, except the choosing of the delegates. It was then decided that each county should elect three members of their delegations to meet in a room of the building and make the selections. George Perkins, chairman of the Limestone County delegation appointed Joe D. Arrington, Ben B. Hunt of Mexia and Scott Reed of Groesbeck on this committee. The committees immediately met in a room, the entrance of which was wide and permitted spectators and auditors to assemble around to watch and hear the proceedings. It proved to be the hardest contest of any of the district caucuses. Scores congregated around the entrance and watched with interest while it was stated on the inside more than forty ballots were taken before the ultimate choices were determined upon.

The caucus decided to vote on one man at a time. W. E. Jackson was easily elected early in the balloting, he having the vote of the larger counties of the district. By this time, Brazos county had offered the name of W. C. Davis for the other place on the delegation, after having cast its five votes early in the balloting for the Mexia man. At one time Judge Bradley was declared elected, Hill county having made the lead possible by casting its 12 votes for him. Scott Reed promptly made a motion to make it unanimous for Judge Bradley. Hill county then showed some dissatisfaction over its vote, the delegates claiming that they had been misled by the chairman. A motion was offered to permit Hill county reconsider its vote, which carried and the Hill county delegation then cast their vote for Judge Davis. This eliminated the other two names and in a short while the Bryan jurist was declared the winner.

The alternates chosen were H. O. Tatum of Wortham and W. R. Howell of Corsicana.

Delegate Jackson formerly resided in Limestone County.

For elector, Joe Arrington received the vote of the entire delegation with the exception of Madison county which gave five votes to Hon. Rufus Hardy, former congressman from this district, of Corsicana.

The subject of the Klan was not mentioned in the caucus but it was generally understood that the counties of the district with the largest vote and several of the others were represented by a majority of Klansmen as was the State as a whole, and the statement was generally made that the opposition of the Klan to Judge Bradley prevented his selection.

The work of the district caucus was later ratified by the State convention, which also passed on the reports rendered by all of the other seventeen districts.

As the sun went down, squabbling began, the first to be recorded during the day on the floor of the convention. Governor Neff, it will be recalled, has recently declared that too much harmony is dangerous, and those who subscribed to that doctrine certainly had an opportunity to witness some friction bordering on ferocity. At that juncture several district delegations presented minority reports on the subject of delegates to the National convention. The tenth district caucus resulted in the selection of Tom Gambrell of Lockhart and Harper Kirby of Austin. A minority report was tendered offering the name of P. C. Maynard of Bastrop as a substitute for Harper Kirby.

"He's not for McAdoo" was the war whoop that called to battle the rapidly decreasing crowd of delegates. When promise of a convention fight appeared many settled in their seats and hundreds crowded around the speaker's stand and the big gavel, some saying that this was what they had come for, inferring that they preferred a scrap rather than harmony brought about by a heavy steam roller which had all during the day flattened every thing that came in its path.

The debate raged for nearly an hour, the high spots being when a "little fighing demon" from the district involved was recognized by the chair and used such language as that 'Gimlet headed crowd of antiprohibitions," affirming that he was little but that he was bigger than that entire bunch that was fighting Harper Kirby who had done more for the prohibition cause than any man in Texas. Cyclone Davis held his seat as long as he could and finally arose to atack Mr. Kirby. He stated that when he made the opening speech in Washington to make the capitol city go dry that Underwood, supporters of Smith and other notorius wets led the campaign against the cause and bought negro votes to keep the city wet. He then stated that the papers had led him to believe that Harper Kirby had back slid and had been fighting for Underwood. Mr. Kirby, who had until then remained silent in the controversy, arose and stated that Cyclone Davis was a liar if he said that he had supported or said anything favorable to the candidacy of Underwood.

"Are you for McAdoo?" came the question from scores of lips all over the auditorium. He looked in the direction of one man who had said something about his stand against McAdoo and stated "I know Mr. McAdoo better than you do." He also added that he was always willing to bow to the will of the people when the voice of the people had been heard. His attitude was considered rather weak for McAdoo and as a result his name was blotted off the delegation. Cyclone Davis ended his speech by saying that he did not believe in sending the devil out to preach the gospel of Jesus Christ. This statement summed up the attitude of the convention in sending an anti-McAdoo man to vote for McAdoo. Another significant statement by Mr. Davis was that he hoped he could always pray for the man he voted for and also to vote for the man he prayed for. His apology to Harper Kirby when the lie had been passed was so couched that no hard feelings resulted, Mr. Davis stating that he would most certainly accept any word from Mr. Kirby as truth in preference to what the newspapers might say.

Bexar county district also tendered a minority report to unseat on the national delegation Frank Davis of Austin. The chair ruled the motion of the minority out of order on the grounds that the convention had no authority, to override any district which had been instructed to vote for McAdoo. His ruling was objected to and a motion to appeal from the decision of the chair was voted down vociferously, the man with the big maul thus appearing to be in full control and steady until the last act of the convention, when he was unanimously thanked for his work, as the lights came on and the delegates hurried out.

COLORED YOUTH INDICTED ON CHARGES OF BURGLARY

Frank Smith, 17, colored, was taken off a freight train Saturday night at Bryan by Mexia officers and brought to Groesbeck charged with burglary and theft. He had with him at the time of his arrest, it is stated, a phonograph and several other articles of value.

He was indicted on four charges by the grand jury at Groesbeck.

Death Ray Invention May Be Obtained by French Government

By LLOYD ALLEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, May 27.—France appears likely to get the death ray invention by Grindell Mathews, a Britisher.

Angered by his own Government's low offer for the allegedly diabolical invention which may revolutionize war, Mathews packed his bags in a huff and announced he was taking an airplane to Paris at noon to do business with the French Government. Some skepticism on the part of the British Air Ministry appeared to have added to the inventor's indignation. After a two hour demonstration yesterday held in secret behind barred and guarded doors at Mathews' laboratory, officials of the Ministry reported to the Government on the merits of the death ray. The Government communicated with Mathews, proposing another "simple, but more conclusive test."

The inventor said today that the British Government had offered him only one thousand pounds for the secret of the ray and had made this offer condition upon further successful tests.

In great indignation he flatly refused the offer.

"Such a sum is too totally ridiculous to talk about," Mathews said. "If I were to accept such miserable terms I would lose the option which the French Government holds. Then the British Government could treat me as it pleases, which, judging from experience, is not over generously."

Mathews said he was sorry that his own Government was not to get the death ray, which he claims will kill men at great distances, bring down airplanes and put warships out of commission.

"It is not my fault," the inventor added.

Meanwhile it developed that the Air Ministry has been experimenting with a death ray all its own on which progress has been made.

THE WORLD IN TABLOID

UNDATED.—Returns from four state primaries and conventions show that Texas Democrats instructed for McAdoo as are Montana democrats. In West Virginia Coolidge received republican support and as there was no democratic candidate the delegation will be uninstructed. Coolidge also received the indorsement of the Montana republicans as well as from Texas..

FORT SMITH, Ark.—Fort Smith last night was struck by a 62-mile wind which wrecked a part of the Fort Smith Light & Traction Company power plant, stalled street cars all over the city, put more than 900 telephones out of commission, and uprooted trees.

HUTCHINSON, Kas.—The prosecution prepared to complete its case today in the trial of Dr. Kenn B. Uhls, charged with murdering W. E. Gibbs to obtain $100,000 worth of stock which Gibbs had purchased in a sanitarium operated by the doctor. Witnesses showed Gibbs had the stock in his possession Dec. 20, eight days before the murder. Uhls contended that the certificates had been transferred Dec. 19, by Gibbs to a man known as Waterhaven who has never been found.

TOKIO.—Formal protest against immigration legislation excluding Japanese from the United States was expected to be drafted by the Cabinet today.

ATOKA, Ok.—Five persons were known dead today and several injured in a tornado which swept across the open country north of here during the night, according to meager advices today. J. L. Jett and four of his family were crushed to death when the storm demolished their home five miles north of Stringtown.. Telephone wires were torn down and crops damaged considerably over the country. No other traces of the tornado have been found, according to early reports.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON VIII

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

Why open a savings account in a savings bank?

SAVINGS=money set aside by keeping expenditures below income, which is essential to individual as well as to business success.

J. H. Puelicher

ACCOUNT=accurate record, as applied to savings in a bank, of deposits and withdrawals, showing also earnings from interest; savings banks will open an account with one dollar—the amount most depositors have started with.

SAVINGS BANK=a safe place to deposit savings where they will earn interest; the bank gives the depositor a pass-book, that is, an account book showing deposits, interest credited, withdrawals and balance. Many banks not called savings banks now conduct savings departments.

A savings account in a bank indicates and encourages thrift which is an essential aid to success. Unlike money hoarded, money in the bank is safe from loss by fire or thieves, earns interest and is put to use by the banks in developing the community.

HOME DRESSMAKING

By JEANNE ROLAND
(Copyright 1924 by Pen-Art Service, Inc.)

Styles a Young Chap Likes

Playtime Suit of Obvious Individuality

Individuality of line with excellence of service are coupled in this playtime suit. At this season it is most effective developed in linen, the pants of check material and the collar and cuffs corresponding with the pants.

There is not a single young chap who would not be delighted with this playtime suit, because it gives comfort to the wearer and is extremely stylish in appearance as well. Even at the tender age of six the moderns of today are critical in the matter of clothes. One yard of checked and three-quarter yard of plain linen or other material will be sufficient to make the suit for a boy of four years.

The collar is bound with plain braid, as are the belt and cuffs. In addition to the braid the collar features an embroidered star, which is worked in cotton to match the check material. A star is made just like an arrowhead (Fig. I) with the exception that two more points are added. Figure II shows how the arrowhead is begun. In the first place, run a colored thread the exact shape and in the place where the star is to be. Bring the thread out from the under side of the work, at the lower left-hand corner. Each point of the star is worked separately. Carry the thread upward to the point of the angle, taking a very short straight stitch under the point. Then carry the thread downward to the right-hand corner and take a straight stitch underneath, bringing the point of the needle out at the right of and as near the place where the thread was first brought through as possible. To make the star, the stitches from points B and C in Fig. II must progress downward toward the center of the star, instead of straight across as in the arrowhead.

The stitches at the top of the work are all taken outside of the previous stitches, while the stitches at the lower points of the star are taken inside of all of the preceding ones.

The front of the blouse is slashed and worked on either side with eyelets to match the star. Through the eyelets a string tie is laced and finished in a bow at the base of the collar. Instead of at the back of the slash in the blouse.

A single band of braid is stitched down the side of the pants, which are cut straight at the lower edges. While this trimming easily may be omitted, it adds to the dressiness of the model without making more work for the home dressmaker than can be done in a few minutes.

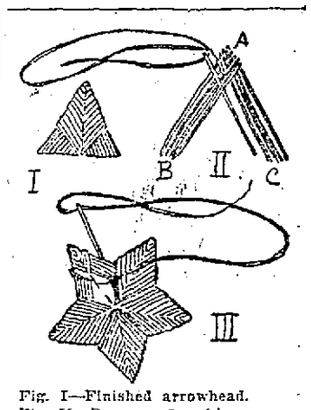

Fig. I—Finished arrowhead.
Fig. II—Process of making arrowhead.
Fig. III—The star.

Bert Cole won his first game of the season and the Detroit Tigers took third place from the Browns by a 5 to 4 victory.

MILLIONS ACCEPT THE THEORIES OF M. ANDRE

Great Chemist's Ideas On Health Are o Reasonable and Clear that Men of Science as Well as the Masses Are Astonished by Their Simplicity and Truth.

France has produced many renowned soldiers, scientists and philosophers but never in her history perhaps, have the teachings of any one man so electrified the great masses everywhere as those propounded by M. Andre. The noted scientist's theories on health and how, once lost, it may be regained, are so clear and easily understood, and withal so reasonable, that men of science are astonished by their truth and simplicity. Recently he stated:

M. PIERRE ANDRE
Discover of Karnak

"Nature intended for us to be healthy and strong and it is only through violation of her laws that our stomachs, our nerves, and our strength are broken down. Poor health is an unnatural artificial condition; one might almost say that it is an acquired habit. But no matter how desperate the case, one great, encouraging and fundamental fact stands out above all others: Nature is constantly working on our side to restore us, and with the proper assistance she will succeed.

Like Healthy Child.

"It takes a long time, even with the greatest abuse, to break down our systems and shatter our health, and what it has taken years to tear down cannot be rebuilt in a day. Do not expect a few doses of Karnak to give back that which has taken years to squander. A few doses will help you and make you feel better, yes; but you want to be fully restored, to feel fine all the time, to be so well and strong that you enjoy every minute of your waking hours and sleep like a healthy child at night.

"This, with co-operation, may be accomplished in less time than you think. Remember that Karnak is composed of the most beneficial roots, barks and herbs known to science, and that Nature too is working on your side. You will very probably begin to feel better after taking Karnak only two or three days, but do not retard the good work it is doing by over-indulgence. Eat plenty of good wholesome food, but not too much; get plenty of sleep. Keeping the bowels open is a matter of first importance. Plenty of fresh air, too, helps and hastens the restorative results Karnak will accomplish. Exercise moderately.

Not a False Stimulant

"Karnak builds, strengthens and tones up the entire system; helps Nature overcome unhealthy conditions and restore the vitality and strength in a natural, lasting way. It is the only safe and permanent way to rebuild the health. Any medicine that works quicker than this is a false stimulant and eventually will do more harm than good.

"The stomach is the fountain-head of health or disease, and is usually the first of our organs to break down. And once the stomach breaks down we are beset with nervousness, weakness, auto-intoxication, palpitation and many other symptoms and diseases that are the natural offspring of impaired digestion and a badly nourished, weakened condition. People who take Karnak are often amazed by the complete disappearance of troubles that had defied other treatment for years and apparently had no connection with stomach trouble or the nourishment of the body.

"This is because a healthy, strong body naturally resists and throws off disease and Karnak helps Nature build up and strengthen the body to the point where Nature itself over comes these troubles."

The announcement yesterday that M. Andre's famous medicine is now obtainable in this city created widespread interest and scores of people have already availed themselves of the opportunity to secure it. The phenomenal success of Karnak as a health-builder is the sensation of the drug trade.

Karnak is sold in Mexia by the Mexia Drug Co.—(Adv.)
